What is the value of your personal data and privacy?

What kind of value do you put on your business/personal data and privacy?

This is a question we should all be asking, yet the majority are still sleepwalking their way into giving it all away for free to big organisations like Facebook and Google. There could become a time when personal data is the only asset a person will hold. Our World is changing fast. The next generation will not be able to live as we do and have done so over the last few decades.

History has shown that profiling persons is NEVER a good thing. Many of the big online organisations are working very hard to psychologically-profile us all, using more and more intrusive methods (hiding via technical-design those methods used too).

Surely it is better to limit the amount of data these companies can get about you and your family/friends/work colleagues, take a few seconds to read this:

For the next generation their only asset maybe their own private data, and right now the majority are giving it away free!
