Check if an email address is compromised in a data breach

This is a useful online tool for checking for compromised email addresses, previously exposed in data breaches.

Data breaches are occurring all the time and with increasing regularity, mainly due to insecure methods used to place data online by an increasing number of companies. Nothing is sacred once breached: passwords, DOB, security questions/answers, etc. all normally due to the data being stored in clear text, no encryption used. On a security note: All your personal data is encrypted with Seiretto, and your main password is one-way-hashed which is the current most secure method of storage of such sensitive data.

Try the tool online now:

<https://haveibeenpwned.com/>

for the results (if compromised) page down and the details will be shown on the lower part of the page.

Are you an Academy? Need a new .AC.UK domain name?

We can advise and guide you through the registration process using our expertise. This ensures you have the best possible outcome when applying for a new .ac.uk domain name.

For full details on how to secure your new .ac.uk domain see:

There is no real alternative to a .AC.UK, other than maybe a .ORG.UK domain. However, these do not carry the same authority and prestige that your new .AC.UK domain will display to your prospective students, sponsors, and investors. AC.UK domains are trusted Worldwide above all else in the same field:

IoT could have the power to disrupt power grids.

The Internet of Things could now have the power to disrupt power grids, as research has shown. Now published at a time when Amazon Echo have announced it can now control a microwave:
